GAS

A Light but Serious Subject Something Greatly Needed—What the Conditions and Prospects Are

—Mr. Anthony Ambrosini in renewing his subscription to the NEWS (which he can't get along without) from St. Paul, says: "The extension of Fourth street railroad and the electric light system will certainly be a great help to Glendale; but it is lacking in one thing, and that is a gas plant; it would be a great help for fuel purposes."

Mr. Ambrosini voices the opinion expressed daily by visitors to Glendale. Gas is not a luxury but a real necessity to the growth of a community and is a commodity which must be supplied Glendale and vicinity without much further delay if we expect to continue the unbuilding of a city.

Our efforts to get gas reach back about three years when the Southern California Gas Circuit company of malodorous memory exploited the community and filched from a few of our people a good sum of honest dollars contributed in the belief that the prominent Los Angeles business men who were backing the concern were of fair honesty and meant business, both of which assumptions were disproved by subsequent events. Then it will be remembered, a few of these same local citizens gave their help to another enterprise which was going along beautifully, being backed up by contracts with something like 800 families in the community who agreed to take gas from this company at the price of $1.25 per thousand. Then into the field came another concern from Los Angeles, the Domestic Gas company, which buncoed the community by canvassing the territory for $1 gas, finding a sufficient number of consumers easily imposed upon who signed contracts with that company which definitely agreed to "Have gas here in ninety days." It is notorious that this same Domestic Gas Company, after having secured the contracts, many of them from the same people who had formerly agreed to take gas from the private company at $1.25, did not do one thing toward furnishing the community with gas as they had unequivocally agreed to do, but lay back content with having put the other company out of business by their "dog-in-the-manger policy. This then is the situation at present. Glendale and Tropico constitute a community of 5000 people with undoubtedly 1000 families who would be glad to pay a fair price for this commodity which thus far is unattainable. There are reasons which make it of doubtful wisdom to attempt to go into the gas business just at present as a municipal proposition, but these objections will soon pass away and by that time the problem will be easy of solution. The principal objection to the municipality going into the gas business is the fact that a municipal plant would only be able to supply about half of the community, and a gas plant to be run economically should be able to supply all of this section of the valley.

We hope it will not be long until the more thickly settled territory contiguous to Glendale will be a part with us in a municipality which will have sufficient territory and population to warrant our going into a project of this kind. Under existing laws any company desiring to come into the city with gas can do so as long as the corporation is not supplying the same commodity to its people, but as soon as a municipal gas system is established all others can be barred. As conditions are now, the Los Angeles gas monopoly evidently looks upon this territory as one in which it is privileged to work its own will in whatsoever way or at whatever time it may please it so to do, and at whatever cost to the community that the people can be induced to stand for.

During the past week a representative of the Los Angeles Gas company has been in Glendale looking over the territory and Mr. Balch of the Domestic company recently gave assurance to a Glendale citizen that it was only a question of delay in getting pipe that prevents that company from at once beginning work on the Glendale system, but that work will surely begin within "90 days."

HORSE PROVES TOO "WILD" FOR HARRY.

Last Monday afternoon while driving the horse belonging to the Munger Laundry, Harry Wilde, formerly an employe of this office, had a narrow escape from being seriously injured. As it is the victim has been seen during the week walking the streets of this town assisted by a stout cane.

The accident happened at the corner of Cypress avenue and Glendale in Tropico. Harry was accompanied by another young man, and had just stopped at a house to take on some laundry. Returning to the wagon he threw the bundle in the body of the conveyance and was stepping in when the animal started to go. The young fellow, who was holding the reins allowed the beast to cramp the front wheel so that the wagon was thrown on its side, spilling unfortunate Harry and his companion into the street. The horse then ran down Glendale avenue, completely demolishing the wagon. Harry's ankle was sprained in the accident, but it is probable that he will be able to return to his work by next Monday morning.

PARENT-TEACHERS.

There will be a regular meeting of the Parent-Teachers association of the Fourth street school at the school house on Friday, January 28th, at 3 p. m.

DEATH OF PROF. TIGHT.
A NOTED GEOLOGIST.

Prof. W. G. Tight died at the Glendale Sanitarium late Saturday night, Jan. 15th, having been there for treatment since Dec. 28th. The cause of death was euremic poisoning. Funeral services were conducted by the Masons, of which order he was a member, at the Pulliam Undertaking Parlors on Tuesday at 2 p. m., the body being cremated at the Los Angeles Crematory. The ashes were sent East to be buried at Granville, O. Prof. Tight came to Glendale about the Christmas holidays with his wife (formerly Mrs. Mabel L. Hackman), suffering at that time from the trouble which caused his death, but which was not considered so serious as it proved to be. He was a scholar of fine reputation and the friends he made in Glendale during his visits here were impressed with his character as a highly accomplished gentleman.

William George Tight was born at Granville, O., March 12th, 1865. He graduated from Dennison University with the edgree of B. S., in 1886, and obtained his M. S. in the following year. For fourteen years he was Professor of Geology in his Alma Mater, and at intervals he studied at Harvard and Chicago Universities. It was during this time that he worked up the thesis which secured for him the Doctor's degree from the University of Chicago in 1901. This thesis, "Drainage Modifications in Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky," was published by the U. S. government and is known as Professional Paper No. 13. The results of his field work in the Lake Superior region were published, with the late C. L. Herrick's material in the Dennison University Bulletins. In the same publication may also be found numerous papers on subjects of biology from Dr. Tight's pen. He was a member and a past president of the Ohio State Academy of Science and was for ten years the permanent secretary of the Dennison Scientific Association. Since coming to New Mexico in 1901 he has played a part in the interests of science no less conspicuous than that of his Ohio career. He is a fellow of the A. A. A. S., past secretary of the New Mexico Academy of Science, member of the U. S. Geological Survey, fellow and past president of the Cordilleron section of the Geological Society of America. Among his publications may be mentioned "New Mexico Balsam Plains" which appeared in the American Geologist. But his most enduring work has been that of inspiring in all the members of the University, Regents, Faculty, Alumni and students, a spirit of hope, enthusiasm and faith.

The above is taken from the University publication, "The Mirage," published by the students of that institution. The Albuquerque Journal of May 8th, 1909, contains an account of the presentation of a loving cup to Prof. Tight by the graduating class of last year. Commenting upon the incident the Journal says, "Many of the members of the graduating class have been associated with President Tight for eight years, and no tribute to his high character and his ability and integrity could be more impressive. It is only one of many such marks of appreciation of which the retiring president has been the recipient during the commencement season, all of which bear witness most strongly to the impression he has made upon the University and the community in general during his nearly ten years of diligent and self-sacrificing work to make the University of New Mexico what it is today, a higher educational institution in the best sense of the word." Speaking of the handful of ashes sent East for interment in the family burial place, an intimate friend said: "There is all that remains of a mortal who was one of God's true noblemen."

OPENING OF HOTEL GLENDALE.

The Hotel Glendale, at the corner of Third street and Glendale avenue, was re-opened on Tuesday last under the management of Mr. F. M. Gray, who comes here from Norwalk where he has been engaged in the hotel business. This hotel was run successfully for a time under the management of Mrs. Sawyers until the Fourth street track was taken up, over two years ago, since which time it has been closed. The building is well located and adapted to hotel purposes and with a caterer such as Mr. Gray has the reputation of being, at its head, will no doubt be a success.

ANOTHER MAD DOG KILLED.

On Monday Marshal Miller was called upon to shoot a dog belonging to Mr. H. C. Goodell of Lomita Park. The animal had been bitten by the dog which ran amuck down in that neighborhood about three weeks ago and had been kept in confinement since that time. He had ceased to accept food or water and showed undoubted symptoms of rabies.

COAL FAMINE.

The coal famine that has prevailed throughout the east for some time past, has reached Glendale. Local dealers are unable to secure any, their orders sent in some weeks ago remaining unfilled and the Los Angeles market is practically closed to them, most of the dealers there retailing it in small quantities only.

Mr. A. M. Bailey has been in Glendale and vicinity during the past week endeavoring to arouse fresh interest in the Fraternal Brotherhood, for which he is an organizer.

Celery-Vesce will be demonstrated here soon. Wtach for it.

ELECTRIC FRANCHISE

Some of Its Provisions

Owing to the general interest taken in the matter the NEWS presents herewith some extracts from the ordinance passed January 16th, 1907, by the City of Glendale, granting a franchise to the "Los Angeles Interurban Railway company, its successors and assigns, etc." Section 2 is as follows:

"Section 2. That said railroad shall be constructed, and at all times operated and maintained, and said right, privilege and franchise is hereby granted and enjoyed, in accordance with and subject to each and every of the terms and conditions of this franchise and not otherwise."

In section 5, provision is made for the keeping of that portion of the street between the rails and for two feet on each side thereof oiled, rolled, paved or macadamized in accordance with the specifications of the city for such work. In case the railroad company failed to do such work within ten days after being served with notice to do so, the board of trustees is authorized to do it, keep an intemized account of the expense, "which said grantee, its successors or assigns by the acceptance of this franchise agrees to pay immediately to the treasurer of the city, etc."

Section 8 is the one that has been more generally discussed than any of the other provisions of the franchise and is the one in regard to which there is probably the greatest diversity of opinion. It is herewith given in its entirety, every reader having the privilege of acting as his own interpreter.

"Section 8. That the grantee of said franchise, or its successors and assigns shall and will at all times upon and after completion of said road, during the operation of the same, and without extra charge, issue to and receive from passengers going in one direction transfers good for one continuous passage over and upon any and every other line and lines, or any other road or roads operated entirely within the said city which said grantee or its successors or assigns does now or may hereafter own, control, operate, or have a controlling interest in; and provided as a further condition that said grantee, or its successors or assigns shall and will at all times, as aforesaid, issue or cause to be issued to said passengers without extra charge, a similar transfer from any and every other line or lines operated entirely within said City which said grantee, or his or its successors or assigns does now or may hereafter own, control, operate, or have a controlling interest in as aforesaid to, over and upon the road operated and maintained under said franchise."

As stated in these columns heretofore, the state law is said to give to the grantee of a franchise three years within which to "make good." the limit expiring on the 16th ult.

FLAG RAISING.

Last Saturday afternoon at 2:30 a flag raising took place on Mt. Verdugo. About noon the children of the West Glendale Grammar school, accompanied by a large number of citizens from Casa Verdugo, started up the mountain, bearing the flag and several lengths of iron piping. At the summit the standard, which measured forty feet, was planted and a short time later the beautiful flag furled to the breeze. It can be seen from every portion of the valley at this time.

The flag measures 6x10 feet and was donated by Charles Soule, proprietor of Casa Verdugo restaurant. A register was also placed at the summit so that those who climb to the top can leave their names there.

ONE ANKLE BROKEN, THE OTHER DISLOCATED.

In an accident at West Glendale recently, James A. Wilson, who came here about two months ago and is residing at 422 South Louise street suffered one ankle broken and the other dislocated. Mr. Wilson is a carpenter by trade and had finished a job in West Glendale. He had taken the wagon to fetch his tool chest, and somehow when nearing the home the harness broke, the horse became unmanageable. Seeing that it was of no use to fight with the animal the man jumped to the street and it was at this time that he suffered the injuries.

He is at this time confined to his home, where he expects to be for at least three months.

CLOSING OF THE UNION EVANGELIST CAMPAIGN.

Sunday will witness the closing of the evangelistic meetings. The meeting has been a great success. Never was there witnessed a more perfect spirit of unity between the churches. The churches of this community are perfectly united in the one thing—the salvation of the people. The Christian people have been made stronger; higher ideals have been formed; greater visions seen; more workers developed. Then there have been many conversions. These will all find their way to the church of their choice. Dr. Henry has preached the whole gospel story and he has preached it tremendously. He has had the unanimous endorsement of all the churches. His like has not been in Glendale. No one in the community can complain that he has not heard the gospel or that he has not had an opportunity to accept of it. The battle has been pressed to the very gates. Prof. Potts has not been less effective with his singing. He possesses a remarkable voice and through the song he pours a sympathetic heart. Every one will hear testimony to the fact that Mrs. Potts is a wonderful musician. She could be nothing less, coming as she does from the famous Sherwood schcol of Chicago. Her rendition last Sunday night of "Nearer My God to Thee," was a wonderful gospel message in itself. February 1 they sail from San Francisco to make a gospel evangelistic tour around the world. No doubt they will have great success. May God's benedictions be upon them.

Sunday there will be an all-day service. A united prayer meeting 8:30 a. m.; united Sunday school session except Beginner and primary departments 9:30 a. m.; preaching by Dr. Henry, 11 a. m.; meeting for men only 3 p. m., subject, "The Twentieth Century Sodom;" 6 p. m., the Union Young People's rally, and the presence of every one who has been converted during the meeting; 7:30 preaching by Dr. Henry, and farewell service. It will be a great day with God. If as yet you have not heard Dr. Henry preach and Prof. Potts sing, Come!

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Master Harold Russell celebrated his birthday, Tuesday afternoon, at his home on Mary street by entertaining several of his little schoolmates. Music and various games made the time seem all too short to the merry party. At a given signal each little man chose a partner and in step to lively music marched into the dining room which had been previously darkened. There a pretty picture greeted them. The color scheme of rose and white was used for both decorations and refreshments, the center of the table being occupied by the white birthday cake surmounted by a circle of tiny rose-colored candles, while at each end of the table was placed large candles and shades of the rose color. The creams, wafers and confectionary were in the same dainty colors. Much mirth prevailed during the "snapping" of the mottoes and adjustment of the various styles of headgear. Tiny place cards decorated with a spray of pink carnations marked places for eleven guests. Several snapshots were taken of the jolly party before their departure for home.

CONDITIONS IN LOS ANGELES AS REPORTED BY R. G. DUN & CO.

Dun's mercantile agency in its yearly review of conditions in Los Angeles gives some interesting figures. Leaving out statistics as to bank clearings, building permits, etc., we quote the following. The sale of postage stamps at the Los Angeles postoffice in November amounted to $110,567, an increase of $26,008 over the same month in 1908, and more than for the entire year in 1892. There had been marketed up to the end of the year from Southern California 37,071 cars of oranges and lemons with the prospect of a greater output the coming year, for which the growers expect to receive at least $36,000,000. Of this total shipment 6185 carloads were lemons. It is expected that during 1910 the petroleum production in Southern California will amount to 46,000,000 barrels, worth approximately almost as many dollars. The bean growers expect to market 44,000 tons, mostly limas. Celery growers anticipate receiving half a million dollars from about 2000 carloads of that product. The walnut growers have harvested a crop of about 8000 tons, worth 11 cents a pound. Some other crops are estimated as follows: Cantaloupes 2000 carloads; cabbage 500 carloads; cauliflower 300 carloads; tomatoes 125 carloads. The olive growers report an output of 1,000,000 gallons of pickles and 500,000 gallons of oil.

The three beet sugar factories produced 135,000,000 pounds of sugar. The wine and brandy output is 7,500,000 gallons. Los Angeles county possesses a total wealth of $586,418,531 and the products for the year 1909 were $57,000,000.

GLENDALE, CAL., JANUARY 22, 1910

Yes, it's a cold winter even in Southern California, but we haven't heard of many cases of frosted feet.

If San Francisco and San Diego don't get together on the 1915 World's Fair proposition we will turn Wiggins and Dick Ferris loose and have the show in Los Angeles. Most of the people of the world will be in this neighborhood anyhow by that time.

"The evil that men do lives after them, the good is oft' interred with their bones," does not seem to fit the case of the late E. H. Harriman, for the good that he did with at least a portion of his wealth, is being made known to the world since his death. Among bequests made in his will was that of 11,000 acres of land along the Hudson river, donated to the state of New York for park purposes. And his widow has contributed one million dollars to buy additional acreage to add to the gift.

The women out on 36th street in the neighborhood of Slauson Junction, Los Angeles, carry revolvers for protection against the tough characters who infest that neighborhood. They have appealed in vain to the city authorities for police protection. The city of Los Angeles has reached out and taken in more territory than it is able to properly protect. The police force was inadequate before the recent additions of outside territory were made and has not been increased in proportion to the increase of responsibility. This condition of affairs is commended to the consideration of Tropico, Eagle Rock and other outside sections, a portion of whose people are anxious to be "annexed."

In the death of Margaret Collier Graham, California and particularly Pasadena, where for many years she has resided, experiences a distinct loss. Among the writers that this state has furnished to adorn the field of literature, are a few who have written more voluminously and are better known to the world at large, but none who painted California characters with a truer touch or set them in a more natural and yet attractive environment. Since reading her collection of California stories, we have looked hopefully for more of such work from her pen and join our regret to that full measure that those who knew her will accord, that no more from her pen will flow the words of truth and beauty.

The unusually low temperature experienced in Southern California recently is not at all unprecedented, but only occurs with such persistence once in a dozen years or so. It undoubtedly means a considerable loss to the citrus fruit interests and it will, no doubt, be developed in the course of a few weeks that a very serious proportion of the orange crop has been frozen. This will probably mean a slump in the market for a few weeks to come until the most of the damaged fruit is out of the way. The oranges grown in this section and in the San Fernando valley generally have never been seriously injured and probably will prove not to be badly hurt this year. Notwithstanding a prevalent opinion to the effect that the nearer an orange is to ripeness the less susceptible it is to damage from frost, it has always been noticeable that the sections producing a late maturing fruit have suffered the least from unusual low temperature.

The report of the committee of the Tuesday Afternoon Club upon the advisability of building a club house, published in last week's News, is most commendable for the good common sense conclusion reached by its members, who recommend that the society assume no such undertaking at present. A club house that would be an ornament to our city and serve the purposes of this very useful organization for some years to come, would cost a large sum of money and the tax upon the energies of the ladies of the club to finance the enterprise, would be constant and severe and would interfere to a serious degree with other useful and most necessary work which the society would desire to take up from time to time. The suggestion made in the report that some public spirited citizen devote a lot upon which, as soon as possible, the club might build, is an excellent one and we hope will bear fruit. There should be something tangible in sight toward which to work before the undertaking is assumed, and if a suitable lot should be donated the members of the club and the community generally would be justified in at least beginning to plan for the building.

CENTRAL AVENUE A BOULEVARD.

Some time ago there was a little agitation over the question of making a boulevard of Central avenue, a thoroughfare which is central in fact as well as in name, when this section of the valley is considered as a whole. Two or three property owners have expressed a willingness to give the land necessary to make the street a hundred feet or more wide. The high class of residences being erected along Central avenue and their constantly increasing number suggests the advisability of at once pushing the matter of widening the street as suggested above, before many improvements are made which will make a change difficult. If it is done it will be necessary for two or three interested property owners to constitute themselves a committee to work the matter up. One difficulty in the way is the fact that the center of the street is the western boundary of the city of Glendale.

Even if Central avenue is not widened out, it can never be properly improved until the full width of the street is within or without the city. This suggests again the advisability of the city taking in more territory on the west side.

"AN INFAMOUS ORDINANCE."

The San Francisco Argonaut condemns in very severe terms the ordinance recently adopted by that city at the suggestion of the health department for the purpose of putting tuberculosis patients in quarantine. The law referred to is as follows:

"In case of tuberculosis proven by sputum analysis, or where the attending physician or inspector is willing to vouch for the diagnosis, when the necessary precautions can not or will not be observed, or when others, especially children, are exposed to infection, a patient may be removed by force is necessary, even if consent of patient or family be not obtained, to such place as may be designated by the department of public health."

The Argonaut says: "It would be hard to find anything more abominable or better calculated to arouse general indignation not only against the supervisors and the mayor, but against the medical officials to whose insistence the authorities have yielded . . . no matter if the doctor be a mere incompetent fledgling from the medical school . . . no matter what his mental or moral status may be, he is endowed with more power than that of any judge in the United States, a power violently to deprive a citizen of his liberty and to confine him in any manner and for so long as he pleases. . . . There are things more sacred than health, and humanity is one of them, and liberty is another."

NO SPECIAL FAVORS TO THE RICH.

There is a good deal of talk in certain quarters about the rich man being above the law and being too gently dealt with by the courts; but the sending of John R. Walsh to prison after a long series of legal contests in which he was defended by the best legal talent that his money could buy, goes far to disprove this somewhat popular idea. That rich malefactors are favored by the courts is a proposition difficult to prove. Of course under our legal system the rich criminal is better able to buy good legal talent to make his fight for freedom, and here, of course, he has a great advantage over the man of limited or no means. But this marks almost the limit of his immunity and in many cases, such as those of Walsh and Morse, wealth proves entirely inadequate to secure release from the penalty of the law. Looking back over the record of past years a number of examples can be recalled of criminals possessing an abundance of wealth who were unable to evade the penalty of the law. There were two conspicuous cases in the state of New York a number of years ago, familiar to all newspaper readers at the time. One of these was "Boss" Tweed and another was John R. Kane, both remarkably successful political bosses with practically unlimited money at their command, yet both brought up in Sing Sing. In California some fifteen years or so ago, a noted criminal named Durant, backed up by the money of a millionaire and a powerful secret society also, made a most remarkable legal fight for his life, succeeding in getting his case brought before the highest tribunal in the land, the Supreme Court of the United States, and yet he was hanged in accordance with the decree of the court.

Instances of this kind are occurring all the time in the legal experience of our country from day to day and give emphatic denial to the reckless assertion that "the courts protect the rich and punish the poor." Indeed, if the higher courts are susceptible at all to undue influence in making their decisions, it would seem as if there is one thing that weighs more heavily with them than consideration for wealth, and that is votes. As an instance may be mentioned th case of Samuel Gompers, the labor leader, who was sentenced nearly a year ago to six months' imprisonment and is still enjoying the fullest liberty with a unexecuted sentence hanging over him, but prevented from falling by some almost mysterious power, which is certainly not money. It is not customary for the Supreme Court of the United States to entertain appeals in cases similar to his, but yet it has done so in this case with the very apparent intention of showing favor td the accused.

SOCIALISM VS. INDIVIDUALISM.

(Contributed.)

Socialism marches with thought, not daggers; it brings peace not war; and acts from the plane of love not hate. It is not an untried theory; but is here; is tried; is proven successful. In our public libraries, in our public parks, in our public schools, in our public postoffices, we find the idea of socialism; we find public necessities owned and controlled by the people. It is not therefore a proposition, but a demonstrated remedy.

Transportation, telegraph, express and every species of manufacture, together with all natural necessities of the community including land, water, air, light, and all pertaining thereto are as public in their character and nature, as are our educational and mail departments, and every circumstance that governs the one certainly governs or should govern the other.

If a public necessity is conducted by private individuals, contrary to the satisfaction and interests of the public, there is but one remedy, and that remedy is for the public to own and conduct such necessities itself.

So long as the public refuses to take charge of their own affairs and allow their affairs to be managed by private interests, it is folly to complain about monopolies, trusts, etc., for private interests is assuredly attending only to itself, and to expect it to attend to public interests is certainly folly.

Socialism or the brotherhood of man is the destiny of the race. Every step the mind of man takes is in that direction. Every invention of labor-saving machinery, forces man, in spite of his ignorance, closer to this issue. Every selfish act merely draws the string tighter around the strangulating neck of individualism. Individualism —narrow browed, little eyed, self-conscienced, keen and sensitive to its own feeling, cold and dead to the feelings and conditions of the many, stands today in possession of the necessities of the race. The part controls what is necessary to the existence of the whole,—manages the necessities of the whole for its contracted individual desires. The natural necessities of the people, a portion of which are land and water, are today positively under the control of individualism and are being managed contrary to the well-being of the whole. Light and air through their subtlety elude in a great measure individual proprietorship, which fact also saves the human race from complete extinction; for were it a fact that individualism could control, purchase and sell these necessities, i. e., light and air, even as it does now land and water, the human race would entirely disappear and perish from the face of the earth in less than a century.

It is the struggle of the ages; individual selfishness, ignorance and hate against collective university, wisdom and love.

Hell is disunion, separation, divided interest and consequently a condition of curses, hatred, confusion and suffering; while heaven, its opposite, is its opposite condition,—a united or collectivized interest, aim, proprietorship, order and power.

Thus if man's individual state is to be strong, his collective state must be strong. If his individual state is to be healthy, his collective state must be healthy. If his individual state is to be free, his collective state must be free, for individual liberty can only be obtained through collective liberty. Individualism foolishly imagines that by individual possession of wealth it is placed above the general condition and has secured safety, peace and liberty. But it has not, for the general injustice which its error inflicts upon society, surrounds it with disease and crime. In vain it surrounds itself with physicians to protect it against diseased society; in vain it surrounds itself with armed officials, police and soldiers, to protect it from a criminalized society. Contagion spreads and crime increases, and the individual proprietor is hastened to his grave by the general contagion.

Individual accumulations can yield no certain security; for the conditions which individual accumulations create are dangerous to security. Collective proprietorship of public necessities and the brotherhood of man can only yield a positive and certain security.

The more individualism refused to guard the collective side of itself, the less individual liberty will it have. Individuals will trample down the rights of individuals, and individuals form with individuals to exploit individuals. Individuals must learn and must realize that their life's happiness and liberty are correlated with the whole; they cannot evolve the higher forms of, either of these apart from the whole. This is the great truth of truths; this is the one truth, and the most important truth, yet to be incorporated in our decalogue of practice; this is the truth which underlies the brotherhood of man; and this is the truth which underlies the virtue of love and the value of wisdom.—Extract from Stephen Maybell's "Civilization Civilized."

AT AVIATION PARK

The "News" Reporter Sees the Airships

A perfect day such as California alone affords at this season of the year. A beautifully sloping field, rising from the railroad where the crowds get off, to the grandstand half a mile away, the latter on the highest point on the ground. Along the roadway leading from the cars to the grandstand the familiar booths that are associated with the country fair, where you can part with nickels and dimes in manners various. The majority of the booths are lunch stands where sandwiches at ten cents per predominate. Down in a hollow back of the grandstand is a large tent in which the two big dirigibles belonging to Knabenshue and Beachy are kept in livery; further up on the high ground is the automobile stand where they are parked several deep, and most convenient to everybody with an appetite for liquids of amber hue and low temperature, is a refreshment tent where the product of the brewery is on tap with something more substantial. In front looking towards Los Angeles and quite a distance over in the enclosed field are two or three big tents on one of which appears conspicuously the name of "Glenn Curtis," the famous American aviator. Paulhan occupies another nearby, but near approach to either is only gained by favor, the common populace being barred, or more correctly speaking fenced out. To the visitor in the early part of the day there is not much to attract, but about one o'clock the crowd begins to cover the earth or about fifty yards in width of it connecting railroad station and grandstand, a large portion of it finding way into the enclosure where the grandstand looms up forty feet or so into the air. The seats are comfortable and substantial and the outlook over the field toward Los Angeles and the mountains eastward is one that can be dwelt upon. There is room on the grandstand for thirty thousand people and we saw about twenty thousand of them in their seats by 2 o'clock. To the spectator who has been in his place for an hour time begins to drag, but just at two o'clock a cheap-looking arrangement of lath (apparently) and muslin which has all the time been stationary on the other side of the field, begins to show symptoms of unrest, there is a buzzing of its internal arrangements, a whiz and a whir and the thing begins to run over the ground on the wheels it is provided with and gradually raising its canvas nose sails up into the air like a thing alive, moving in any direction at the will of the rider. That is a preliminary; presently there is a gasolinish whiz in the air above the crowd and over the grandstand and out into the sea of intangibility overhead moves one of the great dirigibles—a cigar shaped gas bag with a ladder-like attachment underneath in the center of which rides Beachy, who strikes out for Los Angeles but presently changes his mind and returns, moving about in graceful circles—next with another series of chug-chugs chugging rapidly, Knabenshue sails over with the second dirigibles, following its mate. Then Curtis with what up-to-date is the fastest thing in the air in the shape of a bi-plane, getting his engine ready for its work after some minutes of effort, moves up into the field of azure. Presently the great and only Louis Paulin with records to throw at the birds as he sails among them, joins his fellow aviators. Over from Huntington Park way the balloon New York is just sailing into port here and the EXAMINER'S captive balloon occupies modestly a place in the foreground—the whole is certainly an awe-inspiring spectacle and open-mouthed wonder is excusable as we gaze upon it—two balloons, two dirigibles, two biplanes, all at once in the air circling with easy grace.

Later, Curtis and Paulhan try for a speed record and the flights are beautiful to see. The American having the lighter machine, made the mile and a half circuit in 2:13; the Frenchman taking 2:27 in which to do it. The great event of the day occurred after a large portion of the audience had left the field, missing the rare opportunity of seeing the great French aviator soar upward until nearly a mile above the earth, upward until in the evening light he and his machine became a mere suggestion to the eye as they glided in curves of infinite gracefulness on the impalpable waves of the element that man has until recently failed to master.

The arrangements at the camp are pretty nearly perfect and the meet promises to be an immense success financially and otherwise.

* * *

The friends of Edgar Smith, a former Glendale High school boy, were glad to see him return to the field last Monday morning, somewhat pale after his accident of the week before but ready to try again with spirit undaunted by the terrific blow which his own machine gave him.

Everybody was there, of course, or is going; but a few the reporter noticed may be mentioned: Mr. and Mrs. Alex Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Menzo Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Petersen, Miss Dora Filger, Mrs. and Miss Cushing and Mr. C. H. Cushing, C. H. Hibben, Julius Kranz, Leroy Perkins, Dwight Griswold, E. F. Keatinge, Arthur Campbell and others.

* * *

Everybody shoud see the show once, but unless particularly interested in aviation the average spectator does not care to go often, as one day gives a good sample of all the events.

Attorney John W. Carrigan of Los Angeles has announced himself a candidate for the nomination for the office of district attorney and expects to be the choice of the better element in the Republican party in the coming county campaign. From what we hear of him we judge that he is a good man for the position.

Granaries Rat and Thief Proof.

In some sections of the corn and wheat growing districts of Mexico the rodent pest is so bad that extraordinary precautions have to be taken to prevent the destruction of the crops by the little animals. Sneak thieving of the natives must also be provided against. Corn and wheat bins of ordinary construction, such as are used in the United States, would not serve the purpose of protecting the grain. Instead of wooden structures the granaries are built of stone and brick. Most of them are of conical shape and vary in capacity from 500 to 5,000 bushels. The foundations of these granaries are sunk deep into the ground. At the top of the structure is a close fitting lid which covers the hole through which the grain is emptied into the granary. The ordinary method of filling the storehouse is to have the grain carried to the top in sacks upon the backs of laborers up steep ladders. At the bottom of the granary is a door which leads into a narrow chamber, which is separated from the grain room by a solid wall of brick or stone, containing a slatted opening, through which the grain is emptied when required.—Kansas City Star.

Two Hundred Per Cent Loss.

He was no college bred business man. He was just the other kind. In the course of his commercial ventures he was induced by an acquaintance to become a partner in the grain and feed line. After about a year of it the firm went to pieces, leaving him with the bag to hold. A college friend met him shortly after the collapse and was asking about it.

"What per cent of the loss fell on you?" inquired the friend, who didn't know the particulars.

"Two hundred," he responded promptly.

"Two hundred?" exclaimed the friend. "Why, man, there can't be more than a hundred per cent loss."

"Come off," he countered. "There was two of us. He lost a hundred and I lost a hundred. Don't that make 200?"

"Of course not. Your loss is only 100 per cent."

"Yes, but say," he explained, "I had to settle for it all."

"Oh," said the friend.—New York Press.

Masquerading In the Past.

In the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries Venice set the fashion in all matters of amusement and was a sort of combination of our Monte Carlo and Paris. Throughout the eighteenth century the Venetians were seized with a perfect mania for masquerading and gambling. Paris and London followed suit, and the two most popular amusements, both public and private, were masquerades and gambling saloons. People not only wore their masks or visors at balls, but in the mall and the parks and the theaters. At length matters got to such a pass that when a police raid was made on a certain low dancing place in Soho and an order was given for every one to unmask what was the amazement of the police to find that at least a third of the company consisted of ladies and gentlemen of the highest aristocracy, some of whom had even brought their daughters.—London Saturday Review.

The Judges' Ride.

Customs change slowly with the lawyers, but the procession through the streets at the reopening of the law courts was not always the casual affair it now is. Until the middle of the sixteenth century the "judges' ride" to Westminster hall was quite an imposing spectacle, all the legal dignitaries being mounted on mules, like bishops and abbots on a pilgrimage. Mules presently gave place to horses, which in turn were abandoned for coaches. The last procession on horseback took place in the time of Charles II. and was then regarded as an interesting revival. It was not greatly appreciated, however, by the judges themselves, who found their efforts to remain in the saddle far from conducive to a dignified appearance, and before the journey's end one of their number, Lord Twisdon, had the misfortune to be thrown in the mud.—Westminster Gazette.

A New Excuse.

One of the men in a large pottery took two or three days' holiday now and again, and when he came back, on being asked what was wrong, he said he had been away burying his grandmother.

He did this two or three times, and then he thought he had better change his excuse, so, on being asked the next time, he replied:

"Well, my brother, the sailor, is at home just now, and he is so used to the sound of the waves that I had to lash pailfuls of water on the window all night before he could sleep, and then I had to sleep during the day."—London Mail.

A Monumental Bull.

At Kilkenny castle may be seen a "monumental" Irish bull in the form of a tombstone erected to the memory of a former retainer of the Ormonde family. The stone bears the truly Hibernian inscription, "Erected by John Toole In Memory of His Posterity."—Britannia Magazine.

His Smoke.

Mr. Fijit—I say, that's the worst tobacco I ever smoked! Mrs. Fijit—Oh, George, you're smoking my fancy silk! I put it in your tobacco jar to keep it safe.

How to Make Chop Suey.

When his sister came home from cooking school and asked him if he had ever heard a recipe for chop suey he didn't like to admit there was anything on earth that he did not know. He was just at that age. So he sparred for time by asking what she wanted it for.

It seems that the cooking school teacher had given them the question to investigate for themselves. It was one for which there were many answers, but the girl who produced the best recipe was to receive a little prize of some sort. Her big brother must have found out how chop suey was made, she thought, during some of his trips to Chinatown.

The brother then smiled a wicked smile and said he would write out the best and easiest recipe for chop suey in the world. Next morning he handed her an envelope containing the information. She did not open it until her name was called in the class. Then this is what she read aloud, to the amazement of all, herself included:

"Recipe For Chop Suey.—Take a bowl of nice, clean suey and then chop it."—Chicago Tribune.

A Pleasant Old Legend.

Many years ago, sailing from Constantinople to Marseilles, we passed close under the lee of Stromboli, off the north coast of Sicily. The irreconcilable old volcano was not in active eruption, but from the crater a reddish smoke was rising, while from the fissures in its sides burst now and again tongues of lurid flame. "Ah," observed a sailor—the vessel was an English one—"old Booty is at it again!" So far as I can remember there is a legend that one Captain Booty, a master mariner trading to the Mediterranean in the seventeenth century, became so notorious for drinking and swearing that he was seized upon by the fiend and carried off to the interior of Stromboli, from which he has continued ever since to utter profane language by means of tongues of fire and puffs of smoke. This, however, did not prevent the ghost of the profane skipper from frightening his widow, who resided in Lower Thames street, half out of her senses by appearing to her at supper time smelling strongly of brimstone.—London Times.

A Tame Wild Mouse.

I was waiting at the drumming log of the ruffed grouse for the bird to come and perform before me. My place of concealment was in the branches of a fallen dead spruce. I had not been waiting long before a white footed mouse appeared among the branches on the ground almost under me. It was interesting to see how freely he moved from place to place, appearing now here and now there, all the while traveling under the snow, which had many caverns formed in it by the sun, for it was early spring. Another mouse soon made his appearance, and I watched the two for some time as they searched for food. It was not long before one of the mice was nibbling at my shoe, but the slightest movement of my foot, which was resting on the trunk of the tree, sent him scurrying to the shelter of the branches below. By patient advances, however, I was able to touch the little fellow with the tips of my extended fingers, and five minutes later I was stroking his back as you might stroke a kitten.—St. Nicholas.

A King's Old Clothes.

The posthumous sale of the wardrobe of King George IV. of England realized $75,000. Greville, who attended the sale, says that the king "hardly ever gave anything away except his linen, which was distributed every year. There are all the coats he has ever had for fifty years, 200 whips, canes without number, every sort of uniform, the costumes of all the orders in Europe, splendid furs, pelisses, hunting coats and breeches. His profusion in these articles was unbounded because he never paid for them, and his memory was so accurate that one of his pages told me he recollected every article of dress, no matter how old, and that they were always liable to be called on to produce some particular coat or other article of apparel of years gone by."

Oddest Parasite In Creation.

The royal Bengal tiger is infested with one of the strangest creatures that ever lived. It is said to be a fact easily demonstrated or proved by one who has access to a zoological collection that the web of the foot of tigers of the above named species is inhabited by a bloodsucking insect about the size of a common flea which is a perfect counterpart of a tiger in every particular, shape, claws, tail and stripes included.

Rough Passage.

"I hope and pray," remarked a gentleman as he left the steamer, "that I shall never have occasion to cross the Atlantic again."

"Rough passage, eh?" queried a friend.

"Rough is no name for it. I had four kings beat three times."—New York Sun.

Why She Stayed at the Foot.

Hazing.

Hazing is an indefinate and inexplicable something. When we are called before the faculty we deny the existence of the word. We call it gentle horseplay.

Nevertheless hazing, whatever it is, fills its place in man's life. The wonderful state of sophomorehood would be lost if not for it. What would become of our great Military academy at West Point if it were not for hazing?

There are three great periods of hazing in man's life- first the green apple period, then the college period and finally the married period, which, we are told, is one continuous round of hazing on both sides.

Hazing is an educational and desirable experience for those wishing to become slaveholders, superintendents of gangs, divorce seekers and fathers of large families.

What is the greatest press agent of this age? Hazing. Look at the free advertising different colleges receive every year.

Hazing is also very helpful to those wishing to test the strength of baseball clubs, fence pickets and bricks.—Rutgers Targum.

Millet and "The Angelus."

It was only after long years of struggle and dire poverty, through which Millet was consoled and supported by his wife, that the peasant painter was able to take the three roomed cottage at Barbizon and "try to do something really good." It was then that he began to paint that most beautiful "poem of poverty," "The Angelus," which is today one of the most valuable pictures in the world. Again and again he threw aside the picture in despair of ever finishing it to his satisfaction, and as often his wife replaced it on the easel and induced him to continue.

On one occasion he was so incensed at not being able to produce a certain effect that he seized a knife and would have destroyed the canvas and ended the matter once for all had not his wife fortunately seized his hand and induced him to give the picture another trial. Thus it was that at last "The Angelus" found a place on the walls of the Louvre. The success it won encouraged Millet to paint many more pictures and thus place himself among the immortals in art.

Shot His Own Hens.

Two neighbors kept hens and quarreled because they scratched each other's potato rows up. One sold his hens unknown to the other, who made a large run and fastened his hens up, saying:

"Now, the first hen I see in my garden I shall shoot."

Next day he saw a hen scratching as usual, so he got the gun and shot it and then threw it over his neighbor's fence, saying:

"Take your hen!"

The hen was picked up, taken in and cooked.

The following days the same thing happened. Still the neighbor took them up and said nothing till the seventh came over and hit him on the head. Then he picked it up and threw it back at his neighbor, saying:

"Eat your own old hens! We are tired of eating them and prefer a little pheasant. I sold my hens over a month since!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Ready For Market.

Two Canadians were boasting.

"Where I come from," said the first, "we have a salmon river that rises in some boiling springs. As the salmon climb up the river they gradually get acclimated to the heat of the water and don't mind it. In fact, when we fish in the highest reaches of the stream we catch our salmon ready boiled."

"I don't doubt that," said the second Canadian calmly. "Down my way there's a curious salmon river too. It rises in some tin mines. As the fish work up they meet the suspended ore in gradually increasing quantities. They get quite mineralized if they keep on upstream, so that if we fish at the head of the river we catch our salmon ready tinned, and all we have to do is to pack and ship them to market."

Egyptian Embalming.

The modern embalmer is still ignorant of the secret that was so well known to the men of ancient Egypt. The process followed by the Egyptian embalmers is known only in part, the main part being still a mystery. As to the cost of becoming a mummy, Herodotus and Diodorus tell of three modes of embalming prevalent in Egypt, the first very costly, answering to about $2,000 of our money, the second $80 and the third within the reach of all.—New York American.

A Vegetable Cameo.

Spain is the land of the onion, a fact which tempted Mr. Shaw, the author of "Spain of Today," to fall into the appended easy verse. All returned travelers are sure to appreciate it for its feeling for truth rather than its resemblance to the form of "The Ancient Mariner:"

Garlic, garlic everywhere
Except in what you drink.

Partial Cure.

"I fear you are a victim of the drink habit."

"You misjudge me. Lack of the price cured me of the drink habit long ago. It's merely the thirst that bothers me now."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Hopeless.

"Love your neighbor as yourself."

"I do."

"Then why do you have such a grouch?"

"I hate myself."—New York Journal.

The Elephant's Revenge.

In the autobiography of Mr. Lindley Murray a passage occurs from which it appears that one of the clearest heads that ever engaged in the business of analysis was well nigh cracked by a simple agent for a small offense. In the year 1771 he visited the elephants at the queen's palace and, from whatever motive, ventured to withdraw a portion of the hay which one of them had been collecting with his proboscis on the floor. The little affront offended the sagacious animal highly. The keeper remarked that he would never forget, and it was obvious from the rapid convolutions of his trunk that he only wanted an opportunity to avenge the misappropriation of his property on the spot. The grammarian, however, kept out of his way, probably thinking no more of the matter, until he chanced to revisit the same place after an interval of several weeks. On this occasion a number of other persons were present, but of the whole the elephant singled out his enemy and aimed a desperate blow at his head, which, fortunately, neither proved fatal nor took effect.

Made His Ideas Flow.

I used to write for a medical periodical. On returning home one day after a very heavy day's work at the hospital and feeling completely exhausted I found a note from the editor, "Please let me have an article on such and such a subject tonight." I sat down with pen and paper before me, but not a word could I write. Then I lay back lazily and began to speculate as to the cause of my want of ideas. I thought: "The brain is the same as it was yesterday, but yesterday I was not tired. Perhaps it is the feebler circulation that prevents the brain from acting. If the blood does not go up to the brain I may bring the brain down to the blood." I therefore placed my head flat on the table, looking sideways at the paper, and began to write easily. On raising my head again every idea fled, so I placed my head again down on the table and finished the article with my head in that position.—Sir T. Lauder Brunton in Practitioner.

Work of the Earthworm.

When we behold a wide, turf covered expanse we should remember that its smoothness, on which so much of its beauty depends, is mainly due to all the inequalities having been slowly leveled by worms. It is a marvelous reflection that the whole of the superficial mold over any such expanse has passed and will pass again every few years through the bodies of worms. The plow is one of the most ancient and most valuable of man's inventions, but long before he existed the land was, in fact, regularly plowed by earthworms. It may be doubted whether there are many other animals which have played so important a part in the history of the world as have these lowly organized creatures. Some other animals, however, still more lowly organized—namely, corals—have done far more conspicuous work in having constructed innumerable reefs and islands in the great oceans, but these are almost confined to the tropical zones.

Not Literary.

"The late Frederick Burton was the world's foremost authority on the American Indian," said a Yale ethnologist. "Burton was almost alone in his field. There are, you know, so few students of Indian lore.

"He said to me once, with a vexed laugh, that he found it quite as impossible to discuss the Indian with people as a Boston critic found it to discuss poetry with the girl he took down to dinner.

"The girl was very pretty. Leaning her dimpled elbows on the table, she said to the critic:

"'And what is your lecture to be about, professor?'

"'I shall lecture on Keats,' he replied.

"'Oh, professor,' she gushed, 'what are keats?'"—Washington Star.

Tarring and Feathering.

The first recorded instance of tarring and feathering a human being was in 1189, during the time of the crusades. In that year, the first of the reign of Richard I., a law was passed that "any robber voyaging with the crusaders shall be first shaved, then hot pitch shall be poured upon him and a cushion of feathers shook over him." After this the criminal was to be put ashore at the first landing place the ship reached.

What Might Have Been.

"That man Biffin lacks courage and energy."

"Yes, confound him!"

"Why do you say that?"

"Because he was courting my wife long before I met her. If he had had a little more courage and energy— But what's the use of talking about it now?"

Well He Knew.

Emperor Francis of Austria and his empress once attended the performance of a play which abounded in political allusions. On leaving the theater he remarked good naturedly, "We may congratulate ourselves on having seen the piece at all, for I am sure that it will be speedily forbidden."

His Time Wasn't.

"Time is money."

"Cut that lie out!"

"Why do you call it a"—

"Say, I've just done ten years in the penitentiary and come out busted!"—Cleveland Leader.

Knowledge, in truth, is the great sun in the firmament. Life and power are scattered with its beams.—Webster.

J. Bailey Hickman left for Imperial the latter part of the week where he will visit his son-in-law, David H. Imler, on his ranch "La Verne" and enjoy a hunting trip.

Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Lunn of Irwindale, passed several days the early part of the week with their daughter Mrs. Hal Davenport and family of Glendale avenue.

Cover Melrose, who has charge of a mine owned by Tropico men in Rosamond, returned to this place late last week on business. After a very short stay he returned to the mining town.

The work of plastering the home now being erected by Daniel Webster at the corner of Parke avenue and Central, has been completed and the remaining work will be rushed to completion.

Miss Lucie Betannier and Eugene Betannier of Pasadena, Ray Bond of Los Angeles and Miss Lucile Pittman of North Glendale, were guests at the Rice home on Tropico avenue, Wednesday evening.

A social dance was given Thursday evening in Logan's hall by the Tropico Dramatic club. The event was fairly well attended and was under the personal supervision of William Gould and Morris Payette.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Rice entertained at their home, Wednesday evening. Guests included Misses Lucille Pittman and Evalena Ayers, Messrs. Roy Bond and Clarence Peck, Miss Lucie Betannier and Mr. Eugene Betannier of Pasadena.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Rice, both popular young people of this place, who were married in San Diego about two weeks ago, are taking possession of the new house just completed on West Palmer avenue by Mrs. Ernest Morgan. The NEWS wishes these young people every happiness in their new home where they will receive their many friends.

On Friday evening of last week a surprise party was tendered to Mrs. A. O. Conrad by a number of her friends at her home on Glendale avenue. Games made the evening pass very pleasantly and at a reasonable hour refreshments were served. The guests present included Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ballentyne, Mr. and Mrs. John Parker and Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Davenport.

Miss Blanche Davenport entertained a number of friends at her home on Glendale avenue Thursday evening. The time was pleasantly passed in games and music. Those present included: Misses May and Carrie Cornwell, Freda and Ruby Borthick, Evalena Ayers and Blanche Davenport; Messrs. Albert Cornwell, Ray Goode, William Haylett, Harry Lynch, Ray Borthick and Albert Marple.

Very recently a street light was erected at the intersection of San Fernando road and Central avenue—the business section of that thriving little town. The light is the result of the public-spiritedness of L. M. Appleby, O. A. Gallop and Andrew Stevenson, who paid for the illumination and put it up. Oh, that the Spirit might move other citizens so that the little burg might have a very presentable sprinkling of these fireflies.

L. C. Rice and son, Guy, left Wednesday night for Portersville, where they will take up the care of their orange nursery, which they have been forced to neglect somewhat during the past month. Mr. Rice states that not a tree in his ten-acre nursery at this place will be lost on account of the frost. As a result of careful smudging the trees which would have been frost-bitten were saved. This nurseryman states that when the thermometer registers 30 above smudging begins, although it is at 26 above that the trees would be hurt. No chances are taken, and because of this careful treatment the trees were saved.

FOREST LAWN CEMETERY IMPROVEMENT.

Forest Lawn Cemetery association elected officers and a new board of directors this week who are, President, Norton C. Wells; vice president, John Lelwellyn; secretary, Charles O. Morgan. These officers comprise the directorate, together with George W. Walker, Will J. Blain, Tropico, and J. Schoder.

Mr. Wells, the new president, has a record of much usefulness in San Francisco where he formerly resided. After the disaster of April, 1906, Mr. Wells was efficient in the position of assistant secretary and manager of the Housing of the Homeless committee. He was also president of the Fillmore Street Improvement association and was one of the charter members of the Civic League and its first vice president, and has been an untiring worker for the upbuilding of the west in general.

Among the improvements to be made at Forest Lawn cemetery, which comprises 130 acres, will be a two-story office building, to be erected at a cost of about $11,000, and an imposing mausoleum of Vermont granite. A handsome granite building as chapel will be added.

MR. AND MRS. L. C. RICE ENTERTAIN.

What proved to be a very pleasant affair was the At Home reception given by Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Rice at their home on Tropico avenue last Saturday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Rice, who were married recently at San Diego. Also at this time was celebrated the birthday anniversary of Mr. Rice.

For this event the home was decorated with a profusion of ferns, violets and ribbon. Punch was served on the large porch, which was enclosed.

Music for the evening was furnished by Los Angeles talent.

This happy young couple were married January 5th in the Christian church of San Diego by Rev. Crabtree. The service took place promptly at 9 o'clock in the evening, friends and relatives being present. Immediately after the ceremony a wedding supper was served to fourteen guests at the Palace cafe of that town.

Mr. and Mrs. Rice are taking possession of the new Morgan cottage, Palmer avenue.

WEEKLY REVIEW FROM TROPICO SCHOOL.

County Superintendent Mark Keppell made an official visit to the school Wednesday.

A program, which promises to be interesting, is being arranged among the pupils of the Tropico school.

J. C. Yeager of Riverside, will talk to the pupils of this school next Friday afternoon, taking for his subject "Cigarettes and the Brain." During the past week this talented talker has been addressing the grammar school of Pasadena.

The picture, which was awarded to Miss Ingraham's room by the Parent-Teachers' association, was hung this week. It was very prettily framed in mission style by William Mathewson proprietor of the Tropico Mfg. Co., who donated his services and material.

Quite a number of the mothers from this school attended the federation meeting of the Parent-Teachers' association, held at the Sixth street grammar school in Glendale, Friday afternoon.

The boys' baseball team from this school crossed bats with the team representing the Fourth street school of Glendale, Thursday afternoon.

WORK BEING DONE ON TRACT.

A local agent for the G. H. A. Goodwin company of Los Angeles, reports that the surveying of the Tropico Park avenue tract which that company purchased recently, on the west end of Parke avenue, has been completed. Grading will begin early next week and will probably continue for two weeks or more. The majority of the lots in this tract are 50x150, and the price will range from $350 to $500 for inside lots. One thousand dollar restrictions have been placed on these lots, which insures a fair class of homes. Reservations for these lots are being made at this time.

The latest report in relation to this tract is that the owners intend erecting between fifteen and twenty homes on the land, these homes to cost between $1500 and $2000 each. These residences will be put on sale as soon as completed.

As soon as the grading is done the cement work will be started and rushed to completion.

TODAY IS TAG DAY IN TROPICO.

The ladies of the Tropico Thursday Afternoon club and the children of the town are holding up everyone they may meet on the street and thrusting at them a tag, bearing the words "Tropico Tag Day—Books." That the little pieces of cardboard are reaping in the ten-cent pieces is evident by the number of residents—and visitors—who are exhibiting one of the Dennison's product.

This is the second annual tag day,
